Numb. 5221.

The Daily Courant.

Wednesday, July 16. 1718.

From the Amst. Courant, dated July 23.

Copenhagen, July 16.

THE British Merchant Ships which were by contrary Wind detain'd at Anchor in the Bay of Kiow, and the Dutch at Dragoe, set Sail the 14th in the Evening with a good Gale at North West, for the East-Sea, and the same Wind still continuing, 'tis hoped they will soon reach their respective Ports. The British and Danish Squadrons of Men of War lie still in the Bay of Kiow. 'Tis said the King of Denmark, who has been busy for some time, in making a Review of his Troops that are in Jutland, will shortly return to Gottorp in Holstein.

Hamburgh, July 15. 'They write from Copenhagen the 12th, that as soon as the Merchantmen were safe in our Road, the 4 British Men of War their Convoy, sail'd to join the Squadron of their Nation, which lie with ours in the Bay of Kiow. The Envoy of the States General was the Day before the Date of these Letters, in private Consultation with one of the principal Commanders of their Squadron, but it was unknown upon what Subject. The same Letters add, that a Post arriv'd the 11th from Norway, which brought Advice, that the King of Sweden was at Sandsburg with 7000 Men, and expected there the Gross of his Army; and that he seem'd to intend to alarm us also on the Side of Basnoe. All the Swedish Men of War that were at Gottemburg, are now at Stromstadt. The Danish Army are in full March for Swinesund; and it is not doubted that Norway will be the Theatre of the Northern War this Year. Major General Arnold is therefore commanded to pass thither without Delay.

From the Amst. Gazette, dated July 22.

Dusseldorp, July 19. 'Divers Couriers have brought us the agreeable News, that the Peace was signed at Passarowitz between the Plenipotentiaries of his Imperial Majesty, and those of the Ottoman Porte; upon the same Basis as was formerly said, that each Party shall keep what they now possess.

Hague, July 19. 'Altho' the Marquis de Beretti Landi fails not to repeat his Representations to the Members of the State, against the quadruple Alliance, the Success of that Affair is not at all doubted; especially since the rest of the Differences upon the Barrier will now be immediately adjusted, the Sieur Copieters, one of the Commissioners of the Emperour's Revenues in the Austrian Netherlands, being already arrived here, with another Deputy, as also the Director General of the Posts of the said Netherlands; who, on his Part, will adjust all Differences relating to the Posts.

'The Ministers of his Britannick Majesty have in a Conference represented to the Deputies of the States for Foreign Affairs, that notwthstanding his Majesty, and their High Mightinesses are at War with the Emperour of Morocco, some Subjects of this Republick presume to hold a private Trade with the Moors, and furnish them with Materials for continuing their Piracies; whereby they are partly the Cause, why those Barbarians will not lend an Ear to an Accommodation with those two Potentates: Whereas if a strict Prohibition of all Commerce with them were rigorously prosecuted, they had been forc'd before now to have come into a Treaty. Wherefore, as his Majesty has a Design to protect the Trade into the Mediterranean against those Corsairs, and constrain the Emperour of Morocco to come to a Peace, which will be equally advantageous to this State, as to his own Kingdom, 'tis hoped their High Mightinesses will let their Merchants know, that they shall not reclaim the Ships of those, who making that colusive Trade, come to be taken by the English; as his Britannick Majesty, on his Part, will act likewise, and will not reclaim the Ships of his Subjects who making the same Trade, shall be taken by the Men of War of this State. To which these Ministers added, that there being at present a War between the States General, and the Regencies of Tunis and Tripoli, and that England is in Peace with those Nations, the Dutch Merchants, to carry on their Trade with Safety, hire and buy English Ships and English Seamen, and send them into the Mediterranean, where after they have sold their Goods pretending them to be English Effects, those Merchants sell or let to hire the same Ships to others in Italy, Spain, or elsewhere, whereby the Seamen for want of Subsistance are fain to go into foreign Service, to the great Prejudice of the British Nation. For this Reason his Majesty hopes that their High Mightinesses will for the future oblige the said Merchants to bring back the same Number of English Seamen as they carry out upon the Ships in Question: And moreover, that the Merchants aboveſaid shall be oblig'd by the States Order, not to constrain the Masters of such English Ships to pay off their Seamen as soon as they return into this Country; for thereby those Seamen being left at loose, engage themselves into the Service of Foreigners, to the great Prejudice of Great Britain, and in breach of the Laws of that Country, which expressly ordain that the Masters of English Ships shall not pay off their English Seamen, or dismiss them till they have brought them back to some Port of Great Britain: And his Majesty promises to act in the same Manner, with respect to Dutch Ships which shall be hired and employ'd by English Merchants. The States of Holland will immediately take this Matter into their Consideration; and the States General will wait for the Advice of the Admiralties thereupon.

'Tis reported, that Prince Kurakin is going to take a Tour to Paris, and 'tis talk'd that his Czarish Majesty will invite the Regent into the Northern Alliance; which shews, that the Conferences at Aland are not like to come to much.

London, July 16.

Yesterday arriv'd a Mail from France.

From the Paris News Letter.

Paris, July 23. We have no News by the ordinary Post from the Spanish Fleet; but on the 21st, a Courier arrived here from the Duke of Savoy, to give Advice to the Duke Regent, that the Spanish Fleet have landed their Men at Palermo, and have proclaimed the King of Spain King of Sicily. He therefore demands of the Regent the Succours of 18000 Men, stipulated by the last Treaty.
